Aurora Diagnostics Twin Cities Dermatopathology, is privileged to include dermatopathologist Andrew J. Larson as a highly valued member of its medical staff. Dr. Larson is nationally board-certified in dermatopathology and anatomic and clinical pathology. Having received a Doctor of Osteopathic Medicine (D.O.) degree from Des Moines University, Des Moines, IA (2004), Dr. Larson then completed a four-year, combined anatomic and clinical pathology residency at the prestigious Cleveland Clinic, Cleveland, OH. Dr. Larson culminated his formal medical education via his completion of a one-year fellowship in dermatopathology at The Cleveland Clinic.

Dr. Larson has coauthored and presented the following scientific studies:

- The first USA composite tissue face transplant allograft. This poster presentation was made at the American Society of Dermatopathology 46th Annual Meeting, Chicago, IL, 2009.
- Concomitant loss of MLH-1 expression in a cystic sebaceous adenoma and tubular adenoma in a case of Muir-Torre syndrome. This poster presentation was made at the American Society of Dermatopathology 44th Annual Meeting, Baltimore, MD, 2007.
- Epidermal growth factor receptor expression and gene amplification in a spectrum of spindle cell soft tissue neoplasms—a fluorescence in situ hybridization (FISH) and immunohistochemistry study. This poster presentation was made at the United States and Canadian Academy of Pathology 95th Annual Meeting, Atlanta, GA, 2006. (This study formed the basis of a journal article subsequently published in Modern Pathology in 2006.)
- Dermatology lecturer of dermatology residents, University of Minnesota Medical School, Minneapolis.
